BABBAGE BUGS BOOTED! BOOK LOVERS, REJOICE!

Dear readers, with much delight I write of my fight with the book bugs of Babbage. As many of you know, after I brought my wares to the warehouse that houses the post-office wares, bugs crept into the paper crates that I then offered people to make books from. The bugs were smelly and dirty – and who wants to make books from papers filled with bugs?

I inform you, dear readers, that as of midnight, Feb'ree 16, 18xx, the last of the Babbage book bugs have gotten the boot. Or two. Boots. If you wish to have book paper with no bugs, please visit the post office and pick up the crate marked “For-Profit 1.5” or “Non-Profit 1.6.” Sorry for the bugs. I blame it on Babbage.

Thank you!

In keeping with news from last week, Miss Fitch Lekvoda, and Nika Thought-werk keep up the fight to call all dolls to gather for a party on March 3, 18xx (this year) at the Crystal Rose Airship Ballroom in Cal'don Kittwick Shire from 5:00 pm to 8:00 pm SLT. Set your watches, and watch the clocks!

Though the party is to honor dolls, it is a party meant for all. Miss Fitch will provide free

Music – so if there is a song you wish to hear, please write her now. From 6:00 pm to 6:30 pm, Miss Ceejay Writer and I will answer questions about writing. If you are a writer wishing to join us, write me a notecard now. From 7:00 pm to 7:30 pm dolls will answer your questions about being dolls. If you are a doll and wish to answer questions, write Fitch now! Doll vendors will sell their wares at the airship all day long. ~ fin

Sanc'chree Notes

Sanc'chree Beset By Bugs

With sadness, I report I have found a bug in the shrine meant for Nix Sands. I am not sure how this came about, but to the friends and fam'ly of Nix, I am sorry. My neglect has caused this. Please forgive me.

I spent part of the day Sunday, Feb'ree 17, 18xx, searching and shooing bugs out of the Sanc'chree. If you find bugs here, please let me know?

Thank you!

Nika's Bazaar Books has begun selling books. Well, it has begun selling one book. That book is a version of Lori Alden Holuta's young adult novel 'A Life Invented.' Problems with Casper-Vend prevent the bookstore from selling it through them. A new vendor has been found. It may be accessed here –

<https://marketplace.secondlife.com/stores/206428>

If you wish to sell your books with Nika's Bazaar Books, please ask me how to get started via notecard. Thank you!

One may also pick up book crates for free at the Babbage office.

Letters From My Mailbox

Dear Reader:

You may or may not know it, but I am planning big changes for the post office. Now, I guess you do know it. Huzzah.

What are these changes? First, I wish to get a book system for the bookstore that can handle books over one-thousand pages. I will start the search for this March 5 of this year.

Second, I wish to visit the idea of a Steamlands-wide event alert system again. I will contact the leaders of the Steamlands about this after I have found the book system I am searching for.

Third, I wish to look for ways to help people find the Steamlands and get them settled. I will visit this concern of mine once the event alert system is tackled.

Fourth ... Fourth? Oh, yes. March Fourth and Conquer.

Most Sincere I Remain,

N. Thought-werk

News To Me

The Menace of Old Mar'kesh

Over the weekend, Old Mar'kesh has been menaced by kudzu. That eat people - or beat people. I'm not sure, but it's bad. If you travel to Mar'kesh, beware the Ivies That March. Also, be sure to bring a goat and very bad music. You were warned.

A Letter to Our Lands

While working on the Doll-Fest-For-All, I found this -

I leave this here for our leaders to think about for their lands.
