CALL FOR CODERS!

The UCPS is still searching for coders. We are trying to gather a group to work on Werk-Books 2.0 and open-source vendors.

The search will keep going until March 7, 18xx. Then, work will begin. The code monkeys will work on two projects. One is an open-source vendor. The second is Werk-Books script package 2.0.

Any questions, please send Nika Thought-werk a letter saying “Hey Nika! I have questions!”
Thank you.

UCPS SEEKS WORKERS

I am looking to build up my workers at the UCPS. These workers would work at the UCPS Office in New Babbage at set times during the week.

These workers would answer questions about the office. We would also discuss ways to improve mail service for the Steamlands.

As part of the mail service, my Ghost would also help workers learn scripting (if needed).

Clockworks only, please. Thank you! ~ fin

Letters From My Mailbox

Dear Ms. Thought-werk:

Is it true that a dog's bark is worse than its bite?

Signed,

Timmy

Dear Timmy,

It depends on the dog and the bark and if the dog washes its paws. And never trust a dog that makes choc'late barks for you with muddy paws. Dogs can't eat choc'late ... so that choc'late might not be what you think it is.

Most Sincere I Remain,

Nika
